THE MOST BEAUTIFUL COLLECTION OF MASTERPIECES OF FRENCH LITERATURE

The great writers illustrated by the great masters (Bibliothèque Larousse).

This new collection, combining elegant appearance with cheapness, makes a very fine library, the volumes of which (size 5 x 8 ins.) are mostly illustrated, representing all the masterpieces of the great French writers from the classics of the 16th and 17th centuries up to the modern authors. Every volume, carefully printed on fine paper, is sold at the exceptionally reduced price of net 25 cents bound in paper, and net 35 cents cloth bound. The following are already out:

Racine: Théâtre complet illustré (3 vols.). Molière: Théâtre complet illustré (7 vols.)

Corneille: Théâtre choisi illustré (3 vols.). La Fontaine: Fables illustrées (2 vols.).

Balzac: Eugène Grandet (1 vol.), Le Père Goriot (1 vol.), La Cousine Bette (2 vols.), Le Cousin Pons (1 vol.), Le Lys dans la vallée (1 vol.), Le Médecin de campagne (1 vol.), La Peau de chagrin (1 vol.).

Alfred de Musset: Premières Poésies (1 vol.), Poésies nouvelles (1 vol.), Comédies et Proverbes (3 vols.), La Confession d'un enfant du siècle (1 vol.), Nouvelles (1 vol.), Contes (1 vol.).

Anthologie des écrivains français du XIX^e Siècle: Poésie (2 vols.).

To be published shortly: Œuvres de Boileau, Voltaire, Chateaubriand, etc.

N.B.—The "Bibliothèque Larousse" is the only collection which really contains all the great French writers, whether their works are published in extenso, or whether they appear as a selection of the best pieces.

Booksellers are specially asked to recommend these books very strongly, as they are well known everywhere abroad and satisfy the clientèle entirely. Good terms. All the above books can be had from the publishers direct: Librairie Larousse, 13-17, rue Montparnasse, Paris, (6^e), or from all Newsagents in Paris and America.

NOTES IN SEASON.

REMINDE customers of the post-office ruling that such words as "Not to be opened till Christmas" and the like, if written in pen or pencil, subject the book or parcel to letter postage, but that such phrases may be printed or rubber stamped or affixed by the adhesive stamps, which booksellers should keep in stock.

BAKER & TAYLOR Co. report sales of John Bigelow's "Retrospections of an Active Life" to have gone even beyond their large expectations, already making necessary a large new edition, which appeared December 16.

"TRUXTON KING," George Barr McCutcheon's Graustark story, sells faster and faster, and Dodd, Mead & Co. advise their customers to order without fear twice as many as they can see immediate sale for, so as not to lose sales in the coming rush.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY have just ready "The Art of the Metropolitan Museum of New York," by David C. Preyer, giving a critical and descriptive account of its treasures which represent the arts and crafts from remote antiquity to the present day.

A. C. MCCLURG & COMPANY practically sold out their second edition of "My Lady of the South" before the books were out of the bindery, and a third large edition has been put to press for delivery before Christmas. Reports from every part of the country indicate great sales on this book.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY have succeeded in getting out in time for Christmas giving, "My Life in China and America," the frank autobiography of Yung Wing, Commissioner of the Chinese Educational Commission, Associate Chinese Minister in Washington, and expectant Tao-Tai of Kiang Su.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. are just in time for the Christmas trade with Percy C. Madeira's eagerly expected "Hunting in British East Africa," telling the complete story of his wonderfully successful hunting trip in the winter of 1907 and 1908 over practically the same ground as Mr. Roosevelt is now covering.

RICHARD G. BADGER is issuing this week new editions of "My Life as a Dissociated Personality," with introduction by Dr. Morton Prince; and of Dr. Boris Sidis's "An Experimental Study of Sleep," in cloth bindings, at the same price as the first editions, which were issued in paper. The sales of these books increase steadily.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS already have ready the third edition of Thomas Nelson Page's "John Marvel, Assistant," and the third edition of "The Arabian Nights," edited by Mrs. Wiggin and Nora A. Smith, with Maxfield Parrish's superb colored illustrations. F. E. Chadwick's "The Relations of the United States and Spain: Diplomacy" is also an eagerly expected book.

IMMEDIATELY upon the turn of the year the thoughts of the fortunate turn to travel, and guide-books are much called for. Among the newest comers are "Terry's Mexico," a new guide-book to the Mexican Republic, by T. Philip Terry, modeled after the celebrated "Baedeker Guide-Books" and just issued by Houghton Mifflin Company; while Small, Maynard & Co. furnish M. D. Frazer's "Practical Guide to Great Britain and Ireland: Preparation, Cost, Routes and Sight-Seeing," in two volumes, and Albert Barlow Hale's "Practical Guide to Latin America, Including Mexico, Central America, the West Indies and South America," all these books containing bibliographies and lists of books on various objects of interest in the respective countries.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

As assistant director of physical training, public schools, New York City, Miss Bancroft has a large and varied experience with and knowledge of games and their educational and recreative value. Much of the material in this volume has been gathered from original research among the foreign population of New York City, while more has been taken from descriptions in travellers' and missionaries' accounts of different countries. Indoor games, outdoor games, strenuous games, quiet games, in fact, the book may be called an encyclopedia of games, it covers its subject so thoroughly. The indexes are carefully and helpfully arranged.

History as "presenting an exact knowledge of the past to be used as a key to the future," is one of the most entrancing and instructive studies, when imagination lights the facts. In this volume of essays this has been accomplished and we read of the writings of history: its professions, and such of its representatives as Gibbon, Lecky, Walpole, Green, Bourne, Cox, etc., with intense appreciation. The author has written "The history of the United States from the compromise of 1850 to the final restoration of home rule at the South in 1877." Index.

It is peculiarly appropriate that Miss Waters's book appears this year—which marks the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of visiting nursing in Liverpool, England. The growth of the movement has been remarkable. In the United States alone there are now 566 visiting nurse associations with a staff of 1413 nurses. In the past year 112 new organizations were formed. The Brief history of visiting nursing and the chapter on Principles are particularly clear and interesting. The Directory, conveniently classified by states and cities, gives not only the information expected in such a work, but a very useful statement of the methods and plan of work and organization of all the associations.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 18, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE TOWARD POSTAL QUESTIONS.

PRESIDENT TAFT has set himself the worthy task of promoting government economy and squaring expenditures with receipts, (and in his first annual message, in dealing with postal affairs,) has specially pointed out the deficit of $17,500,000, which exceeds the largest deficit, of $16,910,279, in 1908. This is sufficiently accounted for by the fact that the rural free delivery service as now extended costs $28,000,000 more than its direct return, though credit should be given it for the saving in fourth-class post-offices made possible by this extension, the maximum number of all post-offices, i.e., 76,945 in 1900-01, having been reduced by several thousand in this way. Approximately it may be said that it is the extension of rural free delivery service which causes the deficit, but it is generally conceded that this extension has been wise.

The President therefore proposes that the deficit should be made up by increasing the rates on second-class matter, newspapers and periodicals mailed in bulk, on which the rate, originally two cents a pound in 1879, was made 1 cent a pound in 1886. He points out that second-class matter constituted 63.91 per cent, in weight of total mail matter, and returned but 5.19 per cent. of total revenue, and, doubtless on the authority of the Post-Office Department, figures that the loss on second-class mail matter was $63,000,000, the assumption being that it costs 9 cents a pound to transport. We regret to point out that the department has misled the President into a double fallacy; second-class matter is least costly to handle, per pound or per piece, on the one hand, and on the other hand, its weight reduces the average price for transportation, inclusive of the price for first-class letter mail. In a careful inquiry made five years since it was shown that in the contract price paid to the railroads for postal service the maximum charge for the transportation of mail matter per ton mile of $1.17 for a minimum of 200 pounds per day was reduced to 18.7 cents for 5000 pounds per day, and to a minimum of 5.8 cents for each additional 2000 pounds per day, over a given route. The express companies charge only 7 cents, this including not only transportation but delivery; while the railroads charge for freight from 2 cents down to .7 cent and for passengers with baggage, 16 cents, involving depot facilities, car conveniences, ticketing, etc., down to 4 cents for commuters; all these figures, be it noted, being reduced to the common unit of the ton mile. There has been, we believe, no substantial reduction in the government contract rates with the railroads since 1878, though the reductions in passenger rates have been substantial, and the comparative figures cited will be approximately true to-day.

It is evident from these comparisons, and from the progressive reduction of contract rates with weight, that there is another side to the bulk rate question, and that part of the deficit should be faced by a determined policy of dealing with railroad rates for mail transportation, now vastly excessive.

We cannot, however, agree with those statisticians who, in the interest of the publishing trade, have endeavored to figure that the cost of second-class mail transportation does not exceed 1 cent per pound. The argument for this low rate is the old educational argument which prompted the government to carry local county papers free, as it still does. It was perhaps, not an unmixed benefit to the publishing trade that the rate was reduced from the 2-cent rate of 1878 to the 1-cent rate of 1886, for it has betrayed the government into the unfortunate petty interferences of the Post Office Department with publishers. But to attempt to base a reform on the mistaken theory that this transportation costs 9 cents a pound would be most unfortunate.

There will be much sympathy throughout the country with what is evidently President Taft's position, that the Post Office Department should be self-supporting, but this should not justify a multiplication of the periodical rate, as foreshadowed in the message.

What is needed, as the reports of the Postmaster-General and his Assistants have frequently pointed out, is a simpler classification of mail matter, including the second class, which would relieve the department, publishers, and the public alike, from the present complexities. This would involve probably a moderate increase in bulk rates, as well as the amalgamation long recommended by the department as well as by postal authorities, of third and fourth class matter, at least constituting an approach to a parcels post, and opposed in Congress for that reason. The President points out, with reason, that there is some ground for making a distinction between "newspapers," with an average haul of 291 miles, and "periodicals," on which the average haul is 1049 for magazines and 1128 for miscellaneous periodicals. There is another reason for distinction, which might be more evident within the post-office administration than to the President—that newspapers have political influence, and magazines do not as a rule take sides politically. The difficulty in a separate rating of newspapers and periodicals would be in "drawing the line." The department defines newspapers as publications issued weekly or more frequently, and periodicals as publications issued less frequently than once a week. THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is therefore a newspaper, and would have in itself no reason to complain of the distinction; the Outlook, to take another example, is a weekly, and would accordingly be classed as a newspaper. But the Outlook issues a special monthly number which it calls a "magazine number," and THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY issues, at certain times in the year, special numbers which are practically magazines. The competitors of both these publications are as a rule monthlies, which would have to pay the higher rate as "periodicals," and this would not be quite just. The cost of transporting a piece of mail matter which goes three times as far as another piece is not threefold, and to some extent the difference of distance may be ignored. If the Post Office Department is to maintain the present distinction between "newspapers" and "periodicals" and does not increase the bulk rate on newspapers it certainly should not increase the bulk rate on periodicals to a higher maximum than 2 cents per pound. And, above all, it should provide in any new arrangement for a simplification of classification which will cut once for all the present red tape and petty interferences of the department with the publishing business. When these petty interferences of the postal administration with business were brought to the notice of President Roosevelt, with apology that such trivialities should be brought before the President of the United States and occupy his time, he replied with vigor that it was more to be regretted that such trivialities should exist; and it is in this spirit that postal reform should proceed.

The President in his message has given exclusive attention to this postal subject and to the establishment of postal savings banks, which last recommendation, however criticized in some quarters as paternalism, will probably be well received by the people. It is to be regretted that in his preference for this step in postal progress he omitted to urge a parcels post, or even the amalgamation of third and fourth class mail matter. It is evident that he will give little weight to schemes for extreme reductions of letter and other postage until the department is in a position to pay its own bills, and the friends of postal progress will do well to heed this evident limitation. We believe, however, that a practical program for postal progress can be worked out for early consideration, which would include a parcels post as well as postal savings banks, within the lines of the President's policy of governmental economy, and to such a postal program we shall give careful attention early in the new year.

THE reports of the holiday trade, so far as received, show exceptionally good results in this year of grace 1909. In some localities the season of retail buying opened a little late, but when it started it was with unusual vigor, and some dealers report sales toward the close of the week before Christmas as 25 per cent. better than last year. Booksellers who stocked up well early in the season have hesitated to send in second orders till the holiday market was fully tested, so that re-ordering has also been rather later than usual, but the general word is that all along the line business has been very good. It looks as though the trade at the close of the calendar year might be congratulated on a business close to, if not in excess of, the boom years preceding 1907.

AMERICAN BOOKS ABROAD.

WE reprint from the New York World the very interesting article by George Haven Putnam on "American Books Abroad":

"There has been during the past twenty years an encouraging increase in the interest on the part of readers in Great Britain in American literature, and houses which, like my own, carry on a publishing business in London as well as in New York are able to report a wider distribution for their own books to readers not only in Great Britain but throughout the British Empire.

"The most important development in the last few years in the sale of books by American authors has been, however, not in Great Britain, but in Australia.

"The Australian prides himself on having a wide and breezy way of looking at things, as he certainly has of talking about things, and American fiction, particularly dramatic fiction, fits in very well with his tastes. Stories like those of Myrtle Reed, Maxwell Parrish, Mrs. Edith Wharton, Thomas Nelson Page and dozens of others of the leading American authors are sold by thousands in Australia. It is necessary, however, in order to meet the requirements of Australian buyers that they shall get their books at very low prices, so that American authors must be content to accept for these Australian sales a very moderate royalty.

"The leading American authors, and particularly the writers of fiction, are presented to the attention of transatlantic readers in Great Britain in editions which are printed and copyrighted in Great Britain. The publishing houses which do business on both sides of the Atlantic take care of their own editions, but a large number of the leading English publishers are now on the lookout for promising American authors whose books can be added to their English lists. The sale of standard American publications and of the books which are not taken up in English editions, while still much smaller than it ought to be, is from year to year increasing.

"The late George P. Putnam was the first American publisher and bookseller to invade the English market. He began as far back as 1840 the business of selling American books abroad, establishing for the purpose an American agency. It was, however, not until the enactment of the International Copyright law of 1891 that American authors had a sufficient prospect of returns from their English sales to be interested in securing publishing arrangements on the other side. The more popular American authors, all in fact whose books were likely to prove of interest to English readers, were "appropriated" for unauthorized English editions just as promptly as was the case with the books of popular English authors in the American market.

"Back of the date of international copyright the leading American publishers had, however, a system of courtesy payments to their English authors, which were sometimes considerable in amount, and the house making such courtesy payment was as a rule not interfered with by other houses of the first rank. In proportion to the total amount of the literature that was "appropriated," it is my belief that the payments secured by English authors in the United States back of the time of protection under the law were much more important and considerable than those that came to American authors for the smaller group of American books that were reprinted in Great Britain.

"Since the establishment of international copyright in 1891 there has been a smaller payment in this country for the English works of fiction of what may be called the third or fourth order of importance, speaking either from the literary or from the commercial point of view.

"American authors themselves produce enough and more than enough novels which may be described as "pleasantly written," or as "deserving of coming into print," but which are not particularly distinctive or commanding in their interest. When stories of this class by English authors could be obtained without payment the American authors found difficulty in securing consideration in the publishing offices. At this time, however, the American market supplies itself in large measure with the less important fiction, while for fiction of the first group and second group, (whether classified by literary importance or by the extent of the popular interest,) the market does not recognize any political boundary. For these books there is a widespread demand calling for editions in hundreds of thousands of copies which supply the demand of readers in Great Britain, Australasia, Canada and the United States. The American author, and particularly the American writer of fiction, who is not to be placed in the first or second class, has, however, very little chance of securing a hearing in Great Britain.

"The British market is oversupplied with stories, good, bad and indifferent, and particularly with those which are to be described as indifferent. I doubt whether any development of American publishing or book-selling machinery in Great Britain will in the present condition of the interests and the prejudices of English readers of fiction, and with the enormous supplies provided by the English writers of fiction, leave any remunerative market available in Great Britain for third-class American fiction.

"There is from year to year an increasing inquiry from publishers in Germany, France, Sweden and Italy for authorizations to bring into print books by American authors, chiefly works of fiction, which are likely to prove of interest to Continental readers. The amounts that the Continental publishers are prepared to pay for such authorizations are, however, but moderate. The American author must content himself with the prestige of being produced in a German edition plus a very small cash compensation.

"Leading American books find place also in the Tauchnitz Library, printed in English for the use of English readers on the Continent. The Tauchnitz payments, while still modest, are more important than was practicable before the date of international copyright.

"The Dickens landlady, Mrs. Todgers, once remarked that 'there never was a joint that would yield as much gravy as the young gentlemen expected.' In the same way it may be admitted that there are no book markets which will bring to authors, American or other, the returns which they believe they ought to receive. It is true, however, that as the centuries progress the national boundary lines in regard to literary interests are gradually being broken down. The time will yet come when a writer who has produced anything of world-wide value may be assured of giving pleasure and profit to readers throughout the whole world, and of securing from each reader his fair proportion of compensation for the service rendered by the author."

ENGLISH CIRCULATING LIBRARIES ON OBJECTIONABLE BOOKS.

THE decision of the Circulating Libraries' Association, as embodied in an important and influentially signed letter addressed "to the leading London publishers" and printed in The Bookseller, London, "will be received by the very large majority of our readers," says that journal, "with relief and satisfaction. One and all will agree that the pornographic novel has had far too long a run, and the present energetic attitude of the Association in coping with so serious a matter will, it is hoped, be crowned by complete success. The Association represents all the more important libraries in the country, and is heartily to be congratulated on the firm stand it is making by the announcement of a definite undertaking not to place in circulation any objectionable book. It seems indeed paradoxical, to say the least, to prosecute and heavily fine a bookseller for selling immoral French books, as only happened a few days ago, and at the same time permit to pass unchallenged works printed in English, whose contents include matter as bad or possibly worse. It is obvious that supervision in some form, if not an absolute literary censorship, has become vitally necessary, and in our view the Association has found the correct solution."

The letter is as follows:

DEAR SIR: A meeting of the managers of the principal London circulating libraries has been held to discuss a matter which for some time past has been causing annoyance to their subscribers and inconvenience to themselves.

We refer to the circulation by the libraries of books which are regarded as transgressing the dictates of good taste in subject or treatment. Much undeserved adverse criticism has fallen upon the libraries, who, in their endeavors to avoid giving offense, have repeatedly called in such books from circulation, and, in consequence, have suffered considerable loss. In order to protect our interests, and also, as far as possible, to satisfy the wishes of our clients, we have determined in future that we will not place in circulation any book which, by reason of the personally scandalous, libellous, immoral, or otherwise disagreeable nature of its contents, is in our opinion likely to prove offensive to any considerable section of our subscribers. We have therefore decided to request that in future you will submit to us copies of all novels and any books about the character of which there can possibly be any question at least one clear week before the date of publication. Unless time is given to us to read the books before they are published, it is impossible for us to avoid that annoyance to our subscribers for which we, and not the publishers, are generally held responsible.

We trust that you will not consider that the action we are taking in this matter is in any sense an attempt on our part to become censors, and we hope that you will co-operate with us by informing us that you consent to our request.

Will you kindly address your reply to Mr. E. Winterton, Hon. Secretary, Regent House, Regent Street, W.

Yours faithfully,

"IT NEVER CAN HAPPEN AGAIN."

The Publishers' Circular, London, speaks as follows in regard to the refusal of leading English commercial circulating libraries to subscribe to Mr. De Morgan's latest two-volume novel, published by William Heinemann at 10s., and in this country by Henry Holt & Co. at $1.75.

Up to the eve of publication the libraries declare they were under the impression that the book was to be published in one volume at the usual price of 6s., and on discovering that it was to be issued in two volumes at 10s. they decided to leave it out of their catalogues.

The reason for this action was explained by a manager of one of the leading libraries to an Express representative. "The libraries," he said, "played a prominent part in killing the cumbersome three-decker, and we have no wish to encourage anything that inclines towards the old style of publication."

"Our experience tells us that there is little demand for books of more than one volume, which are inconvenient to the library subscribers. Apart from form, the price of 10s. is unsatisfactory."

"The libraries reserve the right absolutely to leave out any book which, in their opinion, is not suitable for library business."

A prominent publisher, in discussing the attitude of the libraries, pointed out that Mr. De Morgan's book is different from the usual run of novels, in that it contains 800 pages, comprising 300,000 words.

As a comparison he referred to Sir Ernest Shackleton's book in two volumes, which was published at 36s.

The action of the publisher is heartily approved by Mr. De Morgan, who said that it was the cheapest book published. The writing of the manuscript and the correction of the proofs extended over a year and a half.

"We have been talking a great deal over the length of books," said the author. "Joseph Vance' was a terrible trial to the publisher to produce at 6s. In these two volumes of my latest book we have crammed as much type as we possibly could, and the paper on which it is printed is thin and of special quality. Many books apparently larger are spaced out with big type, wide margins, and bulky paper."

In the same issue of the Circular appears the following letter from Mr. Heinemann:

DEAR SIR: The refusal of certain circulating libraries to purchase copies of Mr. De Morgan's new book, "It Never Can Happen Again," published at 10s., has brought me a flood of letters, which I am answering in their turn. The reason given to me is that they decline to circulate a novel published at a higher price than 6s. I have pointed out that this book could not be published remuneratively at that price and that their argument would have prevented the publication of most of the greatest novels in our language. They alone must shoulder the responsibility, literary and commercial, of refusing to circulate this book.

I am glad to notice the greater activity of booksellers in pushing the book, since the libraries are without it, and it seems not unlikely that my experiment will furnish some interesting data for the enquiry of the Society of Authors into the published prices of novels.

I hope further to add to their evidence by issuing an ordinary 6s. edition of Mr. Hichens' novel, "Bella Donna," collaterally with the two-volume edition at 14s. net. It will be interesting to compare the sales of the rival editions.

Believe me, dear Sir,

Yours very truly,
WM. HEINEMANN.

AN ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF BANKING.

THE National Monetary Commission is preparing to issue a series of twenty or more volumes on the monetary and banking systems of all civilized nations, as the result of its investigations here and abroad during the past two years. It is said that this library of banking will be without parallel in the literature of any country. One of the early volumes to be issued will contain reports of conferences between representatives of the commission and leading European bankers in the summers of 1908 and 1909, which throw light on the actual banking practices of European countries. In each country, also, the endeavor was made to secure the co-operation of the most competent financial experts in preparing reports upon banking history and customs, and the list of collaborators includes the names of prominent financial editors as well as of university experts on this subject. In addition to European countries, careful attention has been given to the banking of Canada, Mexico and Japan. An especially comprehensive group of volumes will cover the United States.

The commission as soon as possible will print a limited edition of these volumes, and hopes that Congress will soon authorize their general publication and distribution and provide for their sale at moderate prices through the Superintendent of Documents. Booksellers who have calls for them will probably be able to secure them from the Superintendent of Documents, and should add a small margin of profit.

RAPID BOOK MANUFACTURE.

A REMARKABLE example of rapid book production is furnished by "The Congo Reforms" just published by Alston Rivers, London. The publishers had undertaken that this translation of Belgian official papers should be on the market before the Albert Hall meeting of November 19. It was only on the morning of Saturday, 13th, that De Courcey MacDonnell began the labor of translation; the corrected proofs were returned to the printers, Bradbury, Agnew & Co., on Wednesday, at 3 P.M., and at 4 P.M. on Thursday the book was in the hands of the publishers for distribution. It is believed that the style in which it is produced shows no trace of the speed with which it was rushed through.

J. P. MORGAN BUYS POE PAMPHLET.

At the sale of Frank Maier's collection of first editions of American authors, November 22, J. Pierpont Morgan paid the remarkable price of $3800 for a 32-page pamphlet containing "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "The Man That Was Used Up," by Edgar Allan Poe. This is stated to be the record price, not only for a Poe work, but for any book printed in America, the nearest rivals being Poe's "Al Aaraff, Tamerlane, and Minor Poems," two copies of which recently brought $2000, and Eliot's Indian Bible, which sold for £580 at Lord Hardwicke's sale in June, 1888. The present pamphlet was No. 1 of "The Prose Romances of Edgar A. Poe," published by William H. Graham, Philadelphia, in 1843, at 12½ cents.

MEMORIALS OF 1909.

THE POE TABLET IN LONDON.

IN connection with the unveiling by Mrs. Ronalds of the Edgar Allan Poe centenary tablet in London, exercises were held December 8 at the Boudoir Theatre, Kensington. Professor Boas and Professor Jack contributed orations on Poe's genius, "The Raven" and "Annabel Lee" were recited, and the Mayor of Stoke Newington, invited as specially representing the village where Poe spent part of his youth, paid an agreeable local tribute to the American poet.

THE KEATS-SHELLEY HOUSE IN ROME.

A BULLETIN bearing on the Keats-Shelley memorial house, in the Piazz di Spagna, in Rome, has just been published. It is edited by Sir J. Rennell Rodd, the British Ambassador, and Nelson Gay, of Boston, secretary of the Rome Committee of the Keats-Shelley Association. In addition to reviewing the steps taken preliminary to the purchase of the house, in which the late Edmund Clarence Stedman and R. U. Johnson, of New York, were associated, the bulletin presents letters indorsing the plan from Theodore Roosevelt, King Victor Emmanuel and King Edward. The library in the house already includes a thousand volumes, comprising first edition works of the two poets. Among the benefactors are Andrew Carnegie, Miss Marie Corelli and the Duchess of Argyll.

AN IBSEN MEMORIAL.

THE admirers of Ibsen have a project to acquire the apothecary's shop at Grinestad, where Ibsen was apprenticed from 1844 to 1850, to restore it to its appearance at that period as a memorial of the author of "Hedda Gabler." The appeal sent out states that the old house of the apothecary Reimann still exists, and it is almost in the same state as when Ibsen dwelt there. Almost all the fittings still exist and can be purchased. The whole place, the shop, the laboratory, and the rooms, will certainly prove of the greatest interest, and the committee expresses the opinion that future generations will be grateful to those who have prevented the house and its surroundings from falling to decay.

A BIG PACIFIC COAST CONCERN.

ONE of the most extensive bookselling and stationery concerns west of the Mississippi is the Lowman & Hanford Company, of Seattle, who have just entered their twenty-fifth year of corporate existence. From small beginnings in the early eighties this concern, like the wonderful city in which it is located, has grown rapidly, spread out diligently and succeeded famously. In 1885 there were not as many on the entire payroll as there are now heads of departments, who number nineteen in a total of more than three hundred employees. We reproduce with pleasure an interesting group photograph of the office staff. In the centre of the front row is Will D. Wilson, who has conducted the book department for nearly twenty years, and who is affectionately known to all the publishers' representatives who yearly visit the coast.

in your city to use them? We have gone to considerable trouble and expense in this matter, and in order to test its value, would ask that you advise us how many times you use the forms, and which forms you use.

Permit us to suggest that you put one or more of them in your local papers at least three times a week from now until Christmas. Keep before your public in a clear, concise way, and we feel confident you will not fail to get your share of the Christmas trade.

Hoping we have thus assisted you in increasing your holiday trade, we beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION,

F. C. J. TESSARO, Manager.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3, 1909.

It will be interesting, after the rush is over, to hear from those who followed the suggestion, as to the result of this effort to focus local trade. Failure this year would naturally tend to congeal like endeavors in the future on the part of the American Publishers' Association, while, on the other hand, a hope-

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS OF THE LOWMAN & HANFORD COMPANY, SEATTLE.

THE BOOKSELLER AND LOCAL ADVERTISING.

EARLY in December the manager of the American Publishers' Association sent to the retail trade throughout the country a sheaf of suggestive Christmas advertisements for local trade promotion. The letter enclosing these advertisements called special attention to a method of shop publicity which every bookseller might well use to advantage during the short season of holiday buying. It was addressed to fifteen hundred or more booksellers and department stores, and was as follows:

To the Trade:

Encouraged by the appreciation with which our forms of advertisement have been received by booksellers and department stores, we again present a series of them which we think will prove their business-getting qualities. Conditions to-day, we feel confident, augur well for a most prosperous Christmas trade, and we wish to urge upon you the great possibilities to be derived in using these unique and altogether unusual advertisements. We know of instances where two dealers in the same town, small towns, too, have used these "ads" and we have their word for it that it has created business for them. This being so, what if you are the only one ful quantity of success would probably bring forth potential suggestions for holiday seasons yet to come.

DE FORNARO MUST SERVE SENTENCE.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE SEABURY on November 27 denied the application for a certificate of reasonable doubt in the case of Carlo de Fornaro, who was recently sentenced to Blackwell's Island for one year at hard labor for criminal libel against Rafael Reyes Espindola, a Mexican congressman, editor, and friend of President Diaz. De Fornaro, who spent three years in the City of Mexico as part owner of a newspaper, El Diario, returned to New York a year ago, and last March published a book entitled "Diaz, Czar of Mexico; an Arraignment by Carlo de Fornaro." Copies were mailed to President Taft and other government officials, as well as copies in Spanish to President Diaz and his cabinet. A chapter charging United States Ambassador Thompson with using his influence with President Diaz to have the prosecution of friends in a bank failure case dropped is said by De Fornaro to have been indirectly responsible for the Ambassador's recall. De Fornaro was arrested April 23, 1909, charged with criminal libel, on the complaint of Espindola, proprietor of an administration paper in the City of Mexico, the libel having consisted in an attack on Espindola's public and moral character. De Fornaro alleged at the trial that Espindola was a figurehead; that the real prosecutors were President Diaz and his cabinet. A jury in General Sessions brought in a verdict, October 29, of "guilty of malicious libel;" Judge Malone pronounced sentence on November 9.

Justice Seabury in his decision says:

"The indictment brought against De Fornaro on April 2, is based on the sale of 24 copies of the Book to Brentano's. That the book contains the libel does not admit of doubt, nor does the evidence in justification do more than create an issue of fact, which the jury decided adversely to the defendant. The contention that the crime of libel against a non-resident relates exclusively to a libel published in a newspaper and not in a book is based on an erroneous conclusion. It should be borne in mind that the law punishes as libellous only the abuse of the right of the freedom of the press and in no respect places any restriction on the free exercise of the right. Our law not only safeguards the freedom of the press, but our Constitution guarantees that in every prosecution for libel it makes the jury and not the judge the arbiter not only of the facts, but of the law.

"The question is whether the defendant exercised merely his right to publish his sentiments or whether he was guilty of the abuse of that right. This was determined by the jury, and unless it can be shown that the defendant was denied a fair trial or the court committed an error, no reason exists for staying the execution of judgment. It is not necessary in order to constitute the crime of libel for a book to have been read by any person, if the defendant knowingly disposed of or parted with a copy under circumstances which exposed it for sale."

De Fornaro is an artist and architect and a member of the National Arts Club. He was formerly a newspaper caricaturist.

NOBEL PRIZES AWARDED.

THE Nobel prizes, awarded annually from the income of the Nobel Foundation, were distributed at Stockholm, December 10. The recipients were as follows: For promotion of international peace, divided between Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, of France, and M. Beernaert, of Belgium; for physics, divided between Guglielmo Marconi and Professor Ferdinand Braun, of Strassburg; for chemistry, Professor Wilhelm Ostwald, of Leipzig; for physiology or medicine, Professor Theodor Kocher, of Berne; for literature, Selma Lagerlof.

Baron d'Estournelles de Constant is president of the French Parliamentary Group for International Arbitration. He took the Theroanne Prize at the French Academy in 1891. M. Beernaert was formerly Minister of State of Belgium and was the Belgian representative at the last Hague peace conference.

Signor Marconi is the pioneer of discoveries in wireless telegraphy.

Ferdinand Braun is director of the Physical Institute at Strassburg, and has made important discoveries in the relations of chemical energy to electricity and the use of cathode rays.

Wilhelm Ostwald is the author of works on physical chemistry and the foundation of inorganic chemistry and is a member of practically all the scientific societies in the world.

Theodor Kocher has written many books on subjects ranging from children's diseases to antiseptic surgical methods.

Selma Lagerlof is widely known in Sweden as the author of "Christ Legends," "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," etc. She has been called the founder of a new school of literature in Sweden—the optimistic—for, unlike many Scandinavian writers, her viewpoint is always healthful and hopeful. She is the first woman, as well as the first Swede upon whom the literary prize has been bestowed.

PERSONAL NOTES.

W. F. LEE, for many years well known and popular among the trade as representative of A. J. Holman & Co., has been engaged by The Reilly & Britton Co., Chicago, and in the future will have charge of their interests in the East and on the Pacific coast.

EDWARD P. MITCHELL has been appointed president by The Sun Printing & Publishing Company, owners of The Morning Sun and The Evening Sun, to succeed William B. Laffan. Michael E. Laffan has been elected treasurer and D. W. Quinn secretary.

H. R. HERR, for eight years buyer for the book and stationery department of Emery, Bird, Thayer & Co., Kansas City, Mo., has resigned his position with a view to taking an extended rest on account of his health. On his recovery he will take up his residence in St. Louis, where he will go into business with his father in the management of the West End Hotel.

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS, Cambridge, Mass., announces the appointment of Frank T. Hull as superintendent of its large printing establishment. Mr. Hull has filled several important positions in New York and Boston printing offices, and he has an especially good reputation for ability to produce fine illustrated work, for which he will find excellent opportunity at The University Press. The Printing Art is one of the best-known publications produced by this establishment, and the book work of Boston, New York and Chicago publishing houses also includes a wide range of general illustration and color printing. Considerable additions are being made to the pressroom and composing room equipment to meet the requirements of increasing business.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

ANNUAL REPORT OF REGISTER OF COPYRIGHTS.

THE report of the Librarian of Congress for the fiscal year 1908-09, of which advance sheets are at hand, contains also the report of the Register of Copyrights covering the same fiscal period, which completes the term under the old copyright law, the new copyright code going into effect July 1, 1909, the beginning of the fiscal year 1909-10.

The entries of titles for the fiscal year totalled 120,131, of which 108,281 were titles of the productions of citizens or residents of the United States and 11,850 were titles of works by foreigners. Of this total, the entries of books amounted to 32,533, as compared with 30,191 in the year 1907-08; but this total includes approximately 9000 newspaper and magazine articles classified as books.

Deposits of articles (two copies of each) totalled 217,869, of which 1146 were of foreign books received under the act of March 3, 1905. Of the grand total, two copies each were deposited of 27,425 books, as compared with 25,363 in the year 1907-08; this includes, as in the case of entries, approximately 9000 newspaper and magazine articles classified as books.

RUSSIAN COPYRIGHT IN NEWS.

A BILL has been introduced in upper house of Parliament, St. Petersburg, establishing an absolute copyright on news dispatches and correspondence in the periodical press for eighteen hours after publication. The bill, the aim of which is the protection of newspaper correspondents, will, if enacted, prevent morning papers from reprinting the dispatches of afternoon papers and vice versa.

POSTAL MATTERS.

NEW 12-CENT STAMP.

THE 13-cent stamp has had its day and it is to be superseded by a new issue, a 12-cent stamp. With the increase of the registry fee to 10 cents the need is recognized for a 12-cent stamp to cover the registration and a single rate of ordinary letter postage. The new issue will bear a profile portrait of George Washington from Houdon's celebrated bust. The color has not yet been definitely decided upon.

OBITUARY NOTES.

DENTER SMITH, thirty years ago one of the leading musical critics in the country and the author of several songs which had a wide popularity, is dead in his home in Boston. Smith, was born in Salem in 1838. Among his songs were "Put Me in My Little Bed" and "Cross and Crown."

WILLIAM METCALF, widely known in this country and abroad as a civil engineer as well as a steel manufacturer, having been of late years president of the Braeburn Steel Company of Pittsburgh, died in that city on December 2. He was a member of several societies of engineers, and the author of scientific works on steel manufacturing.

COLONEL CHARLES LEDYARD NORTON, author of several books of travel and historical romances, died at his summer home in Sandwich, Mass., December 15, after a brief illness. He was formerly editor of The Christian Union, The Domestic Monthly, The American Canoeist and Outing, and belonged to various New York clubs. He served in the Civil War, becoming Colonel of the 78th U. S. negro troops.

JUDGE SAMUEL H. MOER, a former member of the Superior Court Bench at Duluth, Minn., and at one time the law partner of United States Senator Charles A. Towne, of that State, died suddenly November 29, of apoplexy, at his residence at Brielle, N. J. When past fifty years of age Judge Moer abandoned his profession to become a writer of fiction under the pseudonym of "Steel Williams." His stories of Western life have been a feature of a magazine for the last two years.

WILLIAM ALFRED PACKARD, professor of the Latin language and literature at Princeton University, and formerly a professor at Dartmouth College, died in Princeton, N. J., December 2. He was born in 1830 in Brunswick, Me., was a graduate of Bowdoin College and of Andover Theological Seminary, and studied (1857-8) at the University of Göttingen. He revised, with translations from later editions, Curtius's "History of Greece," and was a contributor to the Princeton Review and Presbyterian Review.

DR. DANIEL AYRES GOODSSELL, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church resident in New York City, died at his home on December 4. He was born in Newburgh, N. Y., November 5, 1840, and was graduated in 1854 from New York University. He had been secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Church and from 1880 to 1888 literary editor of the Christian Advocate. In the course of his official duties he had travelled widely in Europe and the Far East, and he was the author of "Nature and Character at Granite Bay" and "The Things Which Remain."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

A FORMER professor at the University of Liverpool, W. H. Woodward, is preparing for publication a biography of Cæsar Borgia, based upon all the published documents and the results of his own researches in the Archivio Segreto of the Vatican, and in other libraries.

THE final accounting in the estate of Bloodgood H. Cutter, the "farmer-poet," who died at his country home at Little Neck, L. I., Sept. 26, 1906, has just been filed. It shows that he left an estate amounting to $676,977, of which about $525,000 was bequeathed to the American Bible Society, the residue being divided among relatives.

THE executor of Isaac Henderson, author of "The Mummy and the Humming-Bird," who died in Rome last March, has found among the playwright's effects a new play which Mr. Henderson pronounced completed only twenty-four hours before his fatal illness. This play, to which he had devoted eight years of painstaking labor, will probably be put upon the stage in the near future.

THE chair in which Susan B. Anthony sat at her desk during her many years of toil, first for the freedom of the slave and then for woman suffrage, has been placed in the National Woman Suffrage Headquarters at 505 Fifth Avenue, New York. It is an old-fashioned walnut desk chair, upholstered in plush, and was presented by Dr. Shaw and Miss Lucy Anthony to Mrs. Ida Husted Harper.

WILLIAM WINTER, the dramatic critic, whose forty-four years' service with the New York Tribune terminated last August, when the management of that paper refused to print articles condemnatory of indecent plays in its Sunday issues, when theatre advertising is especially heavy, was the guest of honor at a dinner at the National Arts Club on the evening of December 15. One hundred and fifty of his friends were present, and speeches were made by Spencer Trask, William T. Evans, Augustus Thomas, Rev. Thomas R. Slicer and J. Rankin Towse. A letter from Dr. Lyman Abbott voiced well the spirit of the gathering; it said in part: "We must either go with the Cavalier to see everything which commercialism puts on the stage to attract us, or refuse, with the Puritan, to see anything on the stage; or we must have critics like Mr. Winter, on whose discriminating and courageous criticisms we must depend for our ability to see the good and the bad in the theatre." Letters were also read from Senator Elihu Root, William Crane, Viola Allen, John Drew, and others from all over the country.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

WILLIAM GRIFFITH, formerly managing editor of Hampton's Magazine, has become editor and secretary of the Travel Magazine, with offices at 333 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

THE White Rats of America, an organization of actors, have just commenced the issue of The Player, a weekly paper to be devoted to the interests of the organization. The first number contained sixty-eight pages.

Putnam's Magazine for January contains timely articles on, "The Old Oregon Trail," by Robert Fletcher; "Glimpses of T. B. Aldrich," by William H. Rideing; and "Eusapia Paladino," by James A. Leuba, all illustrated.

THE World's Work for January, under the heading of "What I tried to do in my latest book" gives Mr. Meredith Nicholson's aim in "The Lords of High Decision," and Irving Bacheller's aim in "The Master;" and also contains a contribution on the "Literature of New Thoughts," from Frances Maule Björkman.

AFTER a career of more than one hundred years the sale of the Portland (Me.) Evening Advertiser by the State Publishing Company to the Evening Express Publishing Company was announced in the final issue of the Advertiser, dated December 4. The Adver- tiser's name will be preserved as a part of the title of the combined papers.

A NEW woman suffrage weekly paper has just appeared in London, entitled The Vote. Mrs. T. P. O'Connor and Mrs. Marion Holmes are the editors. It is the official organ of the Women's Freeman's League, of which Mrs. Despard is president. The Suffragist, another equal rights paper, makes a specialty of advocating its cause by caricature, cartoons and humorous verse.

IN January The Cornhill Magazine will celebrate its jubilee with a special and enlarged number. Among the leading articles will be "The First Editor and the Founder," by Lady Ritchie, with portraits of her father and George Smith, and facsimiles of two letters from Thackeray to Smith. E. T. Cook will write upon the jubilee, and other well-known writers will contribute character sketches of Leslie Stephen and James Payn, former editors.

B. RUSSELL HERTS, editor of Moods, has been appointed editor of The Forum. The general policy of the magazine will be unchanged, but there will be a new policy in regard to contributors. Among those who will write for the magazine in future are Edwin Markham, Percy Mackaye, William Archer, etc. A posthumous work by George Meredith, entitled "Celt and Saxon," as well as the latest novel of John Galsworthy, will be early serial features of the magazine.

A NEW French daily newspaper entitled Le Progrès appeared in New York on December 8, being published from 91 Centre Street, with Mons. A. F. Bouvet as general manager. It is designed to be "a representative organ of the French-speaking population in America." The collaborators in New York are Henry Bargy, Normal College; Adolphe Cohn, Columbia University; Louis Delamarre, City College; Auguste George, Wadleigh High School; Daniel Jordan, Columbia University, and Felix Weil, City College.

THE hundredth anniversary of the birth of Mark Lemon, one of the founders of Punch, fell on November 29, and should not be lost sight of, even in the annus mirabilis of centenarians. For the first two years of Punch's existence he was co-editor with Henry Mayhew, and after Mayhew's death was sole editor until his own death, more than a quarter of a century later. The editor helped with money, as well as brains, during the precarious early years. Mark Lemon's money, earned as a popular playwright, was well spent on Punch, for the salary of thirty shillings a week, with which he started, was £1500 a year before he died.

THERE was a rollicking housewarming in the new home of the New York Press Club, at Spruce and William Streets, on the evening of December 8. Several hundred newspaper men gathered in the new building and enjoyed the entertainment furnished by many vaudeville artists. The members and other newspaper men who viewed the new clubhouse for the first time were greatly pleased with it. The building is nine stories in height, eight of them devoted entirely to club purposes. There are dining rooms, a general assembly room, a floor devoted to bedrooms for members or their guests, a large and thoroughly equipped kitchen, a library, reading-room, offices, and rooms set apart for the use of writers. The entire clubhouse is decorated tastefully.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have closed the purchase of the late Dr. Dowie's private library of 6000 volumes at $7000, about half what the books originally cost, not including the specially constructed bookcases that hold them. An attempt was first made to retain the library at Zion City for public use.

G. E. STECHERT & Co. have just ready "The Theory and Practice of Education," being the Chancellor's English Essay, 1885, by Walter Hobhouse, Fellow of Hertford College, formerly Scholar of New College, an anastatic reprint of the edition, Oxford, 1885, a prize essay, with illustrations from original writers.

THE instant success which greeted Gene Stratton-Porter's charming tale of the woodlands, "A Girl of the Limberlost," was followed by a popularity which is still sustained. The publishers, Doubleday, Page & Company, have just issued a fifth edition, which, like the former editions, carries with it "the breath of violets and green woods."

LIBRAIRIE LAROUSSE, Paris, are advertising books recommended for the study and practice of the French language. The booksellers are especially asked to recommend these books very strongly, as they are well known everywhere abroad and satisfy the clientèle entirely. These books can all be had on good terms from the publishers direct.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY have just issued the last of the season's books on their rich fall list: Mrs. Larz Anderson's "The Great Sea Horse," a book of fairy tales by one of the most prominent women of Boston society, specially noted for her philanthropy and her active interest in newsboys. John Elliott, an artist of international repute, has illustrated her stories.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have just ready, "Birds of the World for Young People," by Charles R. Knight and Ella Hardcastle, with 41 colored plates and many black and white illustrations; and "Chemistry for Young People," by Tudor Jenks, with 16 full-page illustrations from photographs and many drawings, a book specially suitable for boys of a scientific turn of mind.

A TRADE paper of Essen, Germany, is disturbed over the American Exposition, which is to be held in Berlin next summer. The paper describes the plan as likely to injure German trade by affording Americans an opportunity to show the excellence of their manufactures. It alludes to Prince Henry of Prussia as an agent for American trade, because he is patron of the exposition and chairman of the reception committee.

WOOSTER & COMPANY, school book publishers, Chicago, call attention to their following publications: The Wooster Industrial Primer; Wooster 1st-5th Industrial Readers; Wooster Arithmetic, Book I. and Book II.; Wooster Primary Speaker; Wooster Sentence Builders; Wooster Number Builders, and Wooster Primary Industrial Reading Chart. Dealers are allowed 20 per cent. discount from list prices.

SMALL, MAYNARD & COMPANY have just ready "Wildwood Ways," by Winthrop Packard, made up of descriptions of natural scenery, which first appeared in the Boston Transcript; and "Practical Guide to Great Britain and Ireland: Preparation, Cost, Routes and Sight-Seeing," in two volumes, by M. D. Frazer, author of "Practical European Guide," giving a fund of information entirely for the benefit of the traveller.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS call special attention to "Home Letters of General Sherman," edited by M. A. De Wolf Howe; "Life Histories of Northern Animals," by Ernest Thompson Seton; "American Prose Masters," by W. C. Brownell, essays of great originality and humor; "Success in Music and How It Is Won," by Henry T. Finck, with a chapter by Paderewski; and "City People," studies of society by James Montgomery Flagg, calculated to make us all think.

JOHN LANE COMPANY have just ready, "César Franck," a story of the great French musician, by Vincent d'Indy, one of his most distinguished pupils, for which Rosa Newmarch has written a scholarly introduction and for which the translator has furnished a chronological bibliography of his published works, while there is also appended a bibliography of works consulted in the writing of the biography. Another little compilation just ready is "Daily Readings in Prose and Verse," collected by E. Chesney.

T. Y. CROWELL & COMPANY have just ready "The Christian Pastor," by Dr. Albert J. Lyman, a study of the modern pulpit; "A New Heaven and a New Earth," by Charles Brodie Patterson, the well-known writer on New Thought Topics; "The Church and Healing," by Dr. Charles R. Brown, a discussion of the curative side of religion; "Do It to a Finish," a success booklet by Dr. Orison Swett Marden; and a new enlarged edition of the standard work, "Punishment and Reformation," by Dr. Frederick H. Wines.

THE OPEN COURT PUBLISHING Co. have just published "Philosophy as a Science," consisting of synopses of the writings of Dr. Paul Carus, with a compact and condensed statement of the philosophy toward which his writings tend. In the summaries of books and editorial articles from The Open Court and The Monist which follow are subjects of greatest variety, yet all bearing upon the awakening of "the unconscious instincts of scientific inquiry" and their unity, which Dr. Carus believes to be the philosophy of science.

AMONG the juvenile publications of the Bobbs-Merrill Company for 1909 is "Almost Fairy Children, or, the Cosy Evenings of Brother and Sister." The author's name stands on the title-page as Caleb Lewis, but that is not his real name. He is a distinguished professor in an Illinois college, who chooses to publish (like Charles Dodgson) the product of leisure hours and playful fancy under a pen-name. The book is said to be written in a spirit of make-believe, nonsense, half sense and common sense not unlike "Alice in Wonderland."

LEMCKE & BUECHNER have imported a volume dealing with the life and art of Jean-Baptiste Isabey, under the title "J. B. Isabey, Sa vie—Son temps, 1767-1855." Mme. de Basily-Callimaki writes the story of this artist; who came in contact with the noted people of his day and painted portraits of Josephine, Napoleon, his marshals, and many others whose names still live—portraits which are exquisitely reproduced in the present sumptuous volume, together with numerous sketches and views and a frontispiece portrait in color of the artist.

PEARSON PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York City, have a fine gift in their ten volumes, Every Girl's Library, containing all the great worth-while poems, essays, folk-lore, mythology, great historical events, and lives of the world's great authors, written and compiled by Margaret E. Sangster, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Percy Keese Fitzhugh, Stella George, Stern Perry, and others equally noted in their special lines. These books are sold by all bookstores, department stores, etc.; customers too far away from these sources will be supplied by Pearson's Magazine, New York City.

THE NORTH CAROLINA HISTORICAL COMMISSION has just published "The Correspondence of Jonathan Worth," edited by Professor J. G. de Roulhac Hamilton, of the University of North Carolina. The chief interest of the volume is in the light thrown on conditions in that State during the Civil War and Reconstruction periods. Worth was at first a determined opponent of secession, but "went with his State" and labored faithfully for the Confederate cause. When the State came under Federal control he became State Treasurer and later Governor during the military regime of General Sickles.

GEORGE MURPHY, INC., New York City, are sales agents for "The British Journal Photographic Almanac and Photographer's Daily Companion, With Which is Incorporated the Year Book of Photography and Amateurs' Guide," for 1910, edited by George E. Brown and published in London by Henry Greenwood & Co. This volume, which, including advertisements, contains 1320 pages, is a practical handbook for both professional and amateur photographers, and covers the entire field of photography with up-to-date information that should be valuable to American as well as to English photographers.

A BIOGRAPHY of Timothy Flint, pioneer, missionary, author, 1780-1840, will be issued shortly by the Arthur H. Clark Co., of Cleveland. It is the work of Professor J. F. Kirkpatrick, of Washburn College, Topeka, Kan., and will be the first published life of this man, who was an important factor in the early history of the central, southern and western parts of the United States. The author, by close and diligent research work, has brought to light a great deal of new material pertaining to the early history of the United States, and the work should prove a distinct addition to our permanent historical data.

RICHARD C. BADGER has just published Ibsen's "Speeches and New Letters," issued with the authorization of Dr. Sigurd Ibsen and having an introduction by Dr. Lee M. Hollander, of the University of Michigan. Other current publications by Mr. Badger are Adrian H. Joline's "At the Library Table," a volume for those who enjoy books about books; and eight volumes of verses, namely: W. H. Venable's "Floridian Sonnets;" O. C. Auringer's "The Death of Maid McCrea;" J. D. Henderson's "The Oak Amongst the Pines;" Ernest Powell's "Poems;" T. Carl Whitmer's "Symbolisms;" Effie Smith's "Rosemary and Pansies;" Wilson Jefferson's "Verses;" and Nelson Glazier Morton's "The Silver Lining."

THE TOWN OF COHASSET, MASS., has recently issued a second volume on the history of the town, entitled "The Genealogies of the Families of Cohasset, Massachusetts, Compiled Under the Direction of the Committee on Town History," by George Lyman Davenport and Elizabeth Osgood Davenport, (one vol., 8°, cloth, pp. 631.) In addition to the 493 pages of genealogy is an article on the "Sea Captains of Cohasset," with portraits of the captains and pictures of many ships and other vessels that were built in or sailed from the town and an account of various storms that have visited it for many years back; also, an interesting account of local musical associations. The work has over fifty fine portraits and illustrations and is a great credit to the town.

THE RUMFORD PRESS, Concord, N. H., announces the publication December 20 of a volume of 24 addresses and papers, entitled "Public Mindedness," by Dr. William Jewett Tucker, ex-president of Dartmouth College. This volume is a discussion of citizenship, considered in many aspects. Dr. Tucker takes the ground that there has heretofore been no sufficient recognition, either in idea or in fact, of the quality of public mindedness as inherent in citizenship. This volume is a discussion of its deficiency from various standpoints. While this series of papers does not include the discussion of purely educational questions, two or three addresses bearing upon college topics have been introduced, notably the origin of the Dartmouth College case, Dr. Tucker's inaugural address upon the historic college, and the address on the administration of the modern college.

BAKER & TAYLOR tell us that Randall Parrish's new story, "My Lady of the South" bids fair to attain the popularity of his other Civil War story, "My Lady of the North." The first edition of 20,000 copies is sold out, and a second edition will be ready in the middle of December. They publish to-day the second volume of "The History of Architecture," by Russell Sturgis, which the author left almost finished; and the third and final volume will be written by Arthur L. Frothingham, who is heartily in sympathy with Mr. Sturgis's point of view, and it will probably appear early in 1910; and they have just ready the fifth and sixth volumes in their popular Child's Guide series: "A Child's Guide to Reading," by John Macy, for a long time associate editor of the Youth's Companion; and "A Child's Guide to American Biography," by Burton E. Stevenson, Librarian of the Public Library, Chillicothe, Ohio, whose book adequately supplements Mr. Elson's book on history in the same series.

It may perhaps be difficult to determine what is a "complete" edition of nursery rhymes—which would be, presumably, a collection to which no additions could properly or suitably be made. But other things being equal, it may safely be said that the most complete edition of "Mother Goose's Nursery Rhymes" is that which contains the greatest number of well-chosen examples of this branch of folk-lore, collected from all sources by a competent authority, and most fully and aptly illustrated by a sympathetic artist. The edition of "Mother Goose" recently published by Dodge Publishing Company, Twenty-third Street, New York City, fully meets all these conditions. It contains over 400 nursery rhymes, collected and edited by Walter Jerrold, the best living authority in this branch of literature, illustrated with over two hundred drawings by John Hassall, whose quaint and humorous work in this line is famous in this country as well as in England. Editor and artist have combined to produce in this book the standard "Mother Goose."

GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY (Hodder & Stoughton, London) have ready, James Moffatt's "George Meredith: a Primer to the Novels," a sane and scholarly criticism of Meredith's contribution to English literature, giving the conditions under which each novel was written, an account of its reception by contemporary critics, whether any of its characters were drawn direct from life, and the relation of each novel to the rest of the group of novels, making a complete survey of Meredith's entire literary career. Of special Christmas interest are Lucas Malet's "Little Peter," an allegory in the old poetic Jean Ingelow vein, with colored illustrations by Charles E. Brock; and Ralph Connor's "The Dawn of Galilee," taking up the life of the disciples after their Master is withdrawn from their sight but still watching and guarding them in their work for Him. For boys the house publishes Herbert Strang's "Barclay of the Guides" and "Lord of the Sea," both manly, exciting and full of information; and six novels for girls by L. T. Meade are brought out in attractive shape. The Great Artist Series aims in each volume to give a review of each artist's life-work, and it already includes "Rossetti," "Raphael," "Burne-Jones," "Botticelli," "Reynolds" and "Constable," each book containing from 40 to 60 plates separately mounted, making them valuable works of reference.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—Charles H. Peck, former secretary, has retired from the Chatterton-Peck Co., and the corporation has been re-organized under the name of the A. L. Chatterton Co.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Roger T. Gill and William F. Wheatley were appointed co-receivers last week by Judge Henisler, to assist Edwin G. Baetjer and Calvin W. Chestnut in winding up the affairs of the William J. C. Dulany Company, which recently became insolvent. The creditors are to receive between 50 and 55 per cent.

NEW YORK CITY.—The A. S. Barnes Company is incorporated to take over the book publications of the firm of A. S. Barnes & Company. The incorporators are Henry B. Barnes, Courtlandt D. Barnes, John P. Pratt, Samuel C. Fairley, Henry B. Barnes, Jr. The periodicals, Teachers' Magazine, The School Journal, and Educational Foundations, will be continued by the old firm of A. S. Barnes & Company.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Butterick Publishing Company has applied to the New York Stock Exchange for the listing of $2,356,000 additional capital stock for the purpose of taking over the Ridgway Company, owner of Everybody's Magazine. The application states that of the 10,000 shares of Ridgway stock 7852 have been transferred to the Butterick Company, and three shares to directors as qualifying shares, but the Butterick Company has acquired none of the properties of the Ridgway Company and has assumed none of its indebtedness. According to Fourth Estate, the Ridgway Company was incorporated in August, 1906, and on October 1 of that year had a neat surplus of $86,463. From February 28 to September 30, 1909, the profits were $46,969, and in that period $75,000 was paid in dividends, the company having at the latter date a surplus of $6061. The balance sheet as of September 30 last, the application says, shows assets and liabilities of $1,696,001.42, by far the largest asset being the goodwill, which is set down as $1,343,748.75. Accounts receivable were $99,420.00 and accounts payable $163,433.

AUCTION SALES.

DECEMBER 20.—J. H. Shorthouse's small collection of modern books—it can hardly be termed a library—will be sold at Sotheby's on December 20. It includes a set of the proof-sheets of the first, and privately printed issue of "John Inglesant." (Birmingham, 1880,) and copies of two other editions of the same work—one with corrections and alterations in the author's autograph, and another with an inscription by him.

DECEMBER 20, 21, 22, 2.30 P.M.—Library of the late Edward D. McCarthy, Plainfield, N. J. Fine editions of classics, early printed books, Spanish and Mexican history. (870 lots.)—Anderson.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

WAGNER'S HEROES

By CONSTANCE MAUD

Profusely Illustrated in Black and White and Colors. Cloth, Octavo, Artistically Stamped in Colors. Price, 50 cents.

These stories are for our young folks and not written for Wagnerites or any other learned persons.

These are just simple tales about men and women who once really lived on the earth and about whom the greatest poet-musician wrote in that wonderful music-language of his which speaks straight to the heart.

Indisputably the Book of the Year

RETROSPECTIONS OF AN ACTIVE LIFE

By JOHN BIGELOW

Three Vols. Imperial 8vo. 48 Illustrations. $12.00 net; carriage extra

A memoir of the classic type: copious in letters, documents, opinions, anecdotes. A record of great events, great scenes, famous men and women. Time—1817-1867. Historic characters—Lincoln, Gladstone, Queen Victoria, Seward, Thackeray, Lord Lytton Dumas, Guizot, Maximilian, Stanton, Lord Palmerston—appear in the ample pages.

"From the historian's point of view, the most important book of the year."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"He tells a story that is of exceptional interest."—Boston Transcript.

"The intrinsic value of the matter adduced outweighs all secondary considerations."—New York Times.

"Mr. Bigelow's work is remarkable throughout for its clarity, orderliness and definiteness of treatment"—Review of Reviews.
